Dear Elisabeth,

I spoke with a reporter at WIBC yesterday and was asked what makes me different than the other candidates.

For years I have seen a decline in our leadership, and an inability to really understand the concerns of those in the 5th District. I believe that strength in character, determination, principled leadership, and integrity are core values that our representatives should have.

Unlike the others who are running in the 5th District, I am an everyday American. I am a small business owner who works hard to provide for his family. And like many other Americans, I pay for my own health insurance. Because of these experiences, I have a deep understanding of how important job creation and healthcare reform are for renewal and change in our country.

Please join me in fighting for the people and returning our country to prosperity.

Sincerely,

Jack

An Everyday American

by Jack Lugar

I spoke with a reporter at WIBC yesterday and was asked what makes me different than the other candidates.

Quite simply, I wonder how, with so many choices, there can actually be so few choices in this primary. In looking at the field of candidates, I can confidently say that I'm the only one who truly is an everyday American. Unlike my fellow candidates, I'm not deeply tied to a political party or the machine, and I'm not beholden to the deep pockets that influence so many politicians' decision making.

Like many Americans, as a small business owner, I pay for 100% of my health insurance. While I have been afforded the opportunity of corporate insurance in the past, I have paid for all my healthcare for the past 6 years and understand the deep need for health care reform in our country.

As a small business owner, working as an attorney and Realtor, I understand how important job creation is for a revival in this country and that this revival starts with small business. I have experience first hand how policies in Washington can make or break industries. Because of these experiences, I know what the everyday American struggles with on a daily basis to support a family and make ends meet.

The reason I entered this race was because everyday Americans like me were calling out for someone who was not a politician to take the reins of leadership. I decided to answer that call.

If the people of Indiana's 5th Congressional District want more of the same in Washington, then they will vote for the incumbent or one of the other candidates. However, if the people of Indiana's last name Lugar, the first name that usually comes to mind is U.S. Senator Richard Lugar, but in this case the candidate's first name is Jack. The attorney and former Hollywood television writer is running for the seat currently held by incumbent Congressman Dan Burton.

Lugar sat down with Abdul-Hakim Shabazz of Indy Politics for an interview on his bid for Congress. Please take a moment to listen to the entire interview at Indy Politics and then share the link with your friends.

The entire interview runs about 12 minutes.
