Jack Lugar For Congress Newsletter

Indiana 5th CD
November 11, 2011

Dear Elisabeth,

Today is a very important day. I am deeply thankful and appreciative to those who have served our country in the armed forces and to those who are currently serving our country. Let us remember and thank all those who have sacrificially served and protected America.

The past and present sacrifices of our men and women in uniform are unparalleled. We owe a great debt of gratitude that we will never be able to repay. It is because of that debt that I am committed to ensuring that our government provides and cares for our veterans. It's the least we can do.

As I have stated, it is my desire to be accessible and regularly meet with concerned citizens. If you are a veteran, please contact me to share the issues that are close to you and how the members of Congress can better serve you.

Again, thank you to all who have and currently serve in our nation's military. Your sacrifice does not go unnoticed.

Happy Veteran's Day!

Raising up New Leaders

by Jack Lugar

I believe that we have a responsibility to younger generations not only to lead them but to teach them how to be leaders and then let them lead. Unfortunately, too often leaders are unwilling to relinquish power and instead of raising up leaders, they hold on, buying into the misconception that everything would fall apart without them at the helm.

One of the biggest culprits of "holding on too long" is our leaders in Washington. As our country falls further into economic disarray, our current leaders who bear a large share of responsibility for the irresponsibility in Congress continue to insist on staying in office. Instead of staying in their positions for 20, 30, or 40 years, these men and women should have some foresight to reach out to the next generation of leaders and offer wise counsel.

While much can be offered from years of experience, much can also be offered through youth and energy. Stepping down from elected office to empower and uplift the next generation is an admirable thing to do. Holding on too long is only self-serving and eventually destructive.

A clear sign that our politicians in Washington are overstaying their welcome is born out in a few simple statistics. First, Congress has a 9% approval rating. Think about it. Only 9% of our country thinks that Congress is doing a good job. If a private business had an approval rating like this from its customers, it would be out of business. A 9% approval rating is a clear sign that it's time for new leaders and new energy. Second, the average age of the 111th Congress is over 57 years and the average age of a Senator is just over 63. Both have increased by over two and three years respectively since the 109th Congress. These statistics show that Washington is not opening up to the next generation, it's leaving them behind.

In his book Developing the Leaders Around You, John Maxwell says, "Leaders who mentor potential leaders multiply their effectiveness." Maxwell also wrote, "Leaders create and inspire new leaders by instilling faith in their leadership ability and helping them develop and hone leadership skills they don't know they possess." I believe this is what our leaders, whether in politics or the private sector, should be doing. They should be mentoring the next generation of leaders and then stepping aside to let them lead.

I think about our current leaders who have held their positions too long. I think about how they've missed so many opportunities to do a good work and multiply. Can any of them really say that in their 20, 30, or 40 years that they never came across one person of potential to whom they could have opened the door and let him or her take over that role of leader? Hardly, unless they weren't looking.

Consider this last quote from John Maxwell in his book The 21 Irrefutable Laws of Leadership. "Great leaders gain authority by giving it away." Just think for a moment about all the opportunities these leaders have missed out on to "gain authority by giving it away."

I believe that one of the most important jobs of a leader is to raise up new leaders again and again. Just like a single apple tree produces many seeds year after year, which in turn can result in many new trees, our leaders should be fruitful in their multiplication of leaders. Unfortunately, many of our leaders have proven to be impotent.

Jobs and the Economy

Return the Power to the Private Sector

It's no secret to Americans. Our unemployment rate is at record highs, and we are facing the worst economic crisis of our lifetimes. But Congress and the President refuse to make difficult decisions. Playing the political game is no longer acceptable in the face of such dire consequences.

Job creation is key to growing our economy. Returning the power to the private sector and the small business owner is the key to reviving our economy. Creating a single job positively impacts the economy in so many ways. It is the private sector that is able to continuously create and multiply jobs.

Those that deny it ignore the facts and common sense. That newly employed Hoosier will buy groceries, get her car fixed, purchase work clothes, be able to afford a house, and the list goes on. That one new job has a tremendous ripple effect on the economy.

To help stimulate the economy, I will introduce and support legislation to create jobs and grow America the right way. My plan "Rewarding the Ripple Effect Plan" would give tax breaks to employers that hire and retain new employees on the unemployment rolls.

In addition to growing the economy naturally, my Plan would keep jobs in the U.S. where they belong and businesses making a profit.

Changing Course

Jack

Jack Lugar is a native Hoosier, raised in Indianapolis in a hard working, middle class family where he was taught the importance of financial responsibility, integrity, a work ethic, standing up for his principles, and accountability. After working in the entertainment industry in Los Angeles, Jack returned to his home state where he and his wife chose to raise their family.

Jack has always brought his principles, passion, and work ethic to his professional life and community. Currently an attorney with The Foster Group, Jack's experience in private practice has exposed him to many of the issues that Hoosiers struggle with on a daily basis. He has also represented a variety of large companies, government entities, and businesses in achieving their business goals.

Jack understands the small business owner. He has been fortunate enough to have his own successes in business, and knows how to effectively operate one. During these difficult economic times, Jack has managed to build and grow a successful real estate brokerage firm in Lugar Real Estate, LLC.

Prior to that he managed his writing career and was represented by The Gersh Agency in Los Angeles. Upon returning to his home state of Indiana, he studied the constitution at IU School of Law, Indianapolis and worked as a lawyer at the Indiana Attorney General's Office. He understands the need to create jobs, grow our economy, and provide affordable healthcare options.

Jack has taken his commitment to smaller government to the streets in supporting and championing grass root community projects that serve communities more effectively than the government ever could. Jack currently sits on the Board of, and is an active participant with Henry's Hope. This non-profit provides for children with life threatening illnesses. He is also the inspiration for Project: Create, developing artistic educational resources for at-risk youth.

Jack also serves on the institutional review board for Concentrics Research, overseeing the protection of human subjects in medical testing.

Jack believes in, and is committed to, private outreach to solve many of our problems. The federal government cannot effectively solve most of them, and should stop trying.

Jack has taught as an adjunct professor at Taylor University, his alma mater, on the topic of new media and the law, and offers public seminars focusing on story development, screenwriting, and social media marketing. He earned a degree in Communication Studies from Taylor University and his law degree from Indiana School of Law, Indianapolis. Jack and his wife of 20 years, Elisabeth, have three children; Callista, Ethan, and Conrad. They are active members of Bridgeway Community Church in Fishers, Indiana.

Please join us on the campaign trail. Together we can make a difference. Your support is extremely valuable in making the changes that are desperately needed. There are many ways to get involved. While financial donations are necessary to run an effective campaign and we would appreciate that assistance, your support by telling your neighbors, putting up a yard sign, hosting a small coffee with friends, or joining us at community events is just as important.

Please contact our office at 317-537-1705, by email at elugar@LugarforCongress.com, or visit our website at www.LugarforCongress.com.

I believe the way to win our future back is to do it together, and be on the ground and meeting with voters. I want to look you in the eye, shake your hand, and hear your concerns and desires for Indiana and this country. Your willingness to help me in this endeavor will truly open the door and provide us a seat at the table in Washington.

Thank you for your support. I look forward to working with you throughout this campaign and in the years to come.

It is time to change course. I'm in this race because my true conservative vision and determination have led me to take action - Right Now, and serve my native State and fellow Hoosiers. I need to gather at least 60,000 votes on May 8, 2012. We can change the course together.

Sincerely,

Jack Lugar
